LOCAL BRIEFS.

REGISTRATION COMMENCES ON Monday.

KEEP THE sidewalks clear, or keep the wheels of the police.

JOHN ASHTON is back in his old quarters on the city jail.

BISHOP SAMUEL A. WOOLLEY, of the Ninth Ward, is seriously ill.

THE QUARTERLY Conference of the Salt Lake Stake commences on Saturday next.

WELLS, FARGO & Co.'s shipments yesterday were over $25,000; base bullion, $2,100.

THE STOCKHOLDERS of the Utah Central will elect directors at their meeting on Monday next.

McCormick & Co. received yesterday, $2,000,000 in silver and lead ores, $8,000,000 in gold, $10,000,000.

HELD'S BAND will not give its regular concert this evening. Stephens holds the winning band this evening.

SEAVE NEWMAN, who has been confined to his room for several weeks past, was yesterday reported in a critical condition.

CHARLES WILSON has been indicted for stealing a horse from C. J. Nelson, of Tay orville, on March 21st. He entered a plea of not guilty.

MAY WHITE, charged with adultery, will not be tried before the 4th of May, but will on that day face the judge of the Third District, if the prosecution is ready.

THE MARRIAGE certificate of Lewis Vaillet, of Grand, Wyoming, and Florence Field, of this city, has been filed with the Probate Clerk, also that of Joseph B. Taylor and E. E. Key.

LEWIS CADWELL, arrested on the charge of stealing a ring to Elbridge Tufts, will probably have a hearing to-day. Mike Castello, charged with the robbery of Cadwell and also with vagrancy, will also be brought to trial.

HENRY WAGNER is first in the market and in the office with the celebrated Buck Beer, which annually blossoms out at this time. A sample was sent up to the copious end last evening. The keg may be sold for this morning.

CHARLES CROW and his son, A. H. C., were arrested on three indictments yesterday, charged with having committed the offense of battery. It is said the cases grew out of the service of a civil process on Mrs. Crow's behalf. Defendants were required to give bonds of $500 each.

J. E. GIBBONS and W. F. ALLEN were arrested on the charge of grand larceny, in having stolen from the D. & R. G. goods to the amount of $38.12. F. S. HAMMOND, also named in the indictment, has not yet been arrested. Defendants took trial Monday to plead.

MR. SALMON, the worthy bishop of Corvallis, was the other night celebrating his birthday with a family reunion, when a committee came in, invaded the house and turned it into a diocese affair which did not terminate until the bishop had been lugged off to Cliff Hall. Here there was a great gathering, a feast of fat things, speeches, and the presentation to the bishop of a pair of silver canisters. All of which tells something of the appreciation in which his people hold him.

JOSEPH PARKY, of Brighton, was arrested late on Thursday evening on the prevailing charge. He could not secure bonds and was taken out to the Pen. He was brought before Commissioner McKay yesterday morning. Mrs. Sillie Parky was the only witness. She said: "I am married to the defendant; Mrs. Jane Parky is also married to him; we were both married on the same day, eight years ago, in Salt Lake City. I was married second; my husband had no wife then. His former wife being dead, the defendant was held in $1,000 bonds, and each of the marriages is valid."

WILLIAM L. ROBINSON, the hero of the Bingham shooting scrape, was before Commissioner McKay yesterday on two charges. The first was for assault with intent to murder James Hair, and the second, charging the same offense against James Johnson. The trouble grew out of a visit by Robinson to the Odd Fellows Hall at Bingham during the progress of a dance. He was deemed an intruder, but defied any one to put him out. James Johnson stepped forward, when Robinson drew his gun and fired. Johnson knocked the pistol out, and the bullet struck James Hair, who was some distance away. In default of bonds, Robinson was committed to the custody of the sheriff.

ROBERT GRITTON was tried in the Police Court yesterday, on the charge of keeping a vicious, mischievous and dangerous dog. The complaint was sworn to by Mr. Chapman, whose boy had been bitten by the animal in question. There was no denial on the part of the defendant that the dog was kept in the house, but he claimed that he was not the owner of the animal, he was not responsible for it as such. The dog, he said, belonged to one of the sisters at the hospital and all he had to do with it was merely to feed and take care of it. The ordinance, however, does not recognize the owner, but makes the person who possesses or has charge of a vicious dog responsible, and provides that on the first conviction of keeping a dangerous dog he shall be fined $5, the second $10, and the third $25, and if he fails to make good the animal shall be killed. Judgment was fined $5, which he paid.

THE ISLAND QUEEN

The Dusky Sovereign Royally Received.

THE AFFECTING RECOGNITIONS

Queen Kapiolani Promises a Visit on Her Return—A Tribute Pitiful—Lie—A Royal Traveler.

Queen Kapiolani, wife of King Kalakaua, the reigning monarch of the Sandwich or Hawaiian Islands, attended by her royal suite, passed through the city yesterday at noon, en route from San Francisco to Washington and New York.

There were two parties made up to receive her, but both combined at the depot, and all arrangements were perfected, as if the whole belonged to one delegation. The first was that composed of the aldermen named by the City Council to greet the Queen and tender her the freedom of the city—Messrs. Webster, Cope and Pyper; each gentleman was accompanied by a member of his family, and the party included besides other City Councilmen, city officials, with their ladies, and Bishop Sharp, Mayor James Sharp and Hon. John T. Caine and Miss Caine.

The second, and larger party, consisted of President Angus M. Cannon and about sixty-five invited guests, among whom were fifteen of the Hawaiian natives residing in this city; the party also included Apostle F. D. Richards, who was made up mostly of missionaries, who had spent some time on the Sandwich Islands; Henry P. Richards, F. A. Mitchell and R. G. Lambert who are entirely familiar with the Hawaiian language, were among the leading gentlemen of this party, which was formed for the purpose of bidding the Queen welcome and showing her that the liberality and kindness which her government had extended to the Mormon elders who had labored under it, and continued to show to the colony of Mormons which was resident there, were both remembered and appreciated here in Utah.

A SPECIAL TRAIN

of three cars—kindly placed at the disposal of the excursionists by the D. & R. G.—left the depot at 8:20 o'clock and made a quick run to Ogden without incident. The C. P. Train bearing the party of distinguished foreigners had arrived, and all were then in the breakfast room at the hotel. Shortly afterwards they entered the special Pullman reserved for their use over the D. & R. G. system, and this car was attached to the special, which was side-tracked some distance away. The cars of the regular train were then hitched behind the Pullman, and the whole train of thirteen cars pulled out for Salt Lake at about 10:40. This was the first opportunity the delegation had had to get anywhere near the queen's person, and Messrs. Lambert, H. P. Richards, Webster, Cope, Pyper, Benjamin Cannon, and a representative of THE HERALD, entered the Queen's car.

THE DUSKY SOVEREIGN

sat about the middle of the car opposite a lady very much her own size, age, color and general appearance. This was the Princess Liliohokalani, sister of King Kalakaua, and the heiress apparent to the throne, the king having no children. Queen Kapiolani is fifty-two years of age, though her looks hardly proclaim it. She is large and stout, and not different in many ways from the large featured but uncomely-looking females of her own race seen here. Her hair is jet black, and is worn combed straight back and coiled on the top of her head, under the hat; her color is somewhat lighter than either that of the natives to be seen here, or of the others of her own party. She has a great deal of quiet dignity in her air, especially when she is receiving the homage of those around her, and the carriage of her head is the most queenly thing about her. When she smiles she looks so pleasant, that it almost makes her look pretty, so she smiles a great deal. She was dressed as a European, in a black satin dress trimmed with velvet sleeves, fringed with ruffs of lace, terminated half way between the elbow and wrist, leaving a plump and dusky arm visible; the hands were encased in black kid gloves; a high black hat, trimmed with black velvet, and surmounted by a white dove's wing, was the only head dress; a long strip of grey fur encircled her neck, crossed on her bosom and disappeared somewhere in the back round. A gold-rimmed eye glass depended by a long gold chain from her neck; in her hand she held a small palm-leaf fan. Her sister-in-law was somewhat darker in color, and her hair was slightly mixed with grey. With the exception of a heavy black veil which hung about her shoulders she was attired in much the same fashion as the queen.

THE INTRODUCTIONS

were managed by Messrs. Lambert and H. P. Richards, who first presented Alderman Webster. This gentleman, in a brief and well-worded address, apprised the Queen of the fact that he and his fellow aldermen had been appointed to tender her the freedom and hospitality of the city. He expressed the gratitude felt by the community for the kind treatment experienced by those of our citizens who had sojourning in the Queen's domains, and regretted that circumstances were such that her majesty could not stop over to personally experience the hospitality that awaited her. This speech was translated to the Queen by the Princess, who speaks English fluently, and her majesty made a very queenly bow in appreciation, expressing her thanks, and the regrets and requesting that her "love" be conveyed to the people who sent her such kindly greetings. The others of the party were then introduced, both ladies shaking hands with each one. President Cannon handed the Queen an address of welcome, which also expressed the pleasure he would have felt if her time had been so arranged that she could become the guest of the community.

There were only the immediate party of the Queen, nine in number, in the car, and the guests were next introduced to the Queen's Chamberlain, Laukea, who is also governor of the principal island of the group, Oahu. He is a young man, of about 30 years of age, in the past few years, however, the two houses have been consolidated, the King naming the Lords, and the commoners being chosen as before. As the total population of the kingdom is but 85,000, (41,000 natives, 18,000 Chinese and the remainder white) it may be thought that a heavy system of taxation is required to sustain the monarchy. But such is not the case. There is a poll tax of $5 on each male, except school teachers and ministers, a tax of $2 which every person must pay before landing; a tax of $1 a year for dogs and 50 cents a year for horses. But the tax on property is only 1 per cent., and the valuation is extremely low. The country is very wealthy, however, or this would not be possible, the sugar plantations being valued at enormous figures.

THE PRESENT DYNASTY of the islands is only of a recent date, King Kalakaua and his Queen being the first regularly crowned monarchs of the twelve islands which make up the Hawaiian possessions. When Captain Cook discovered the islands in 1777, they were ruled over by five independent chiefs, one of whom conquered all the others, and united the whole under himself. Five of his descendants inherited the chieftainship until 1874, when the line of descent was changed and Kalakaua became King.

AN INTERESTING SPECTACLE awaited them. The door of the car, which had been kept locked, was now opened to admit one of the Hawaiians from this city, a large, good-looking woman named Kapukini, who is of superior birth, having chieftain's blood in her veins. As soon as she saw her royal mistress, she burst into tears, and bending low, kissed the cheek of the Princess—a privilege her birth accorded her, and then pressed her lips to the hand of the Queen.

She was spoken to kindly by the Queen, who seemed to recognize her, and was given a seat near by. It was a long time, however, before the poor creature could master her sobs, and both the Queen and the Princess had frequent recourse to their own handkerchiefs. When the woman was able to speak, however, the two engaged her in an animated conversation, which was kept up most of the way down to the city. The Queen inquired particularly after the twenty of her subjects who had been allowed to come to Utah—whether they were happy and contented and how they were occupied. Kapukini answered her that all were doing well, and that none had a wish to return. When the train reached the city, the other Kanakas were admitted to the car; the women all prostrated themselves on their knees in the aisle weeping convulsively and kissing the hands of the Queen and Princess; the men merely knelt and took the proffered hand without saluting it, though the respect and veneration expressed in their faces were almost like worship and adoration. The women continued to kneel and weep in the aisle till the men helped them into seats, and then their tears did not cease to flow. While the last twenty miles were being run several of the party had an interesting

A ROYAL QUEEN.

S. A. Van Praag, the traveling passenger agent of the Burlington, who has the party in charge, says the Queen is "gorgeously anti-dead-head." She only has nine in her party, but she pays fifteen full fares across the continent, to secure a private car. She would accept no favors in San Francisco from the municipality, such as hotel accommodation, etc., and pays her way in coin of the realm for everything she receives.

CRACKING THE CHESTNUTS.

The Old, Old Story Told Again—With the Usual Results.

Jack Hesse, who was arrested on Thursday, charged with selling liquor on Sunday, the 17th inst., was arraigned for examination in the Police Court yesterday. The witnesses for the prosecution were Officers Burt, Jacobs and Barlow, and the substance of their testimony was that at about 11 o'clock on the evening in question they were walking along First South Street, when in the vicinity of the Elk Saloon, they heard voices inside, and going to the window, the blind of which was drawn, looked through and saw defendant behind the bar, in the act of handing out the traditional black bottle, which he placed upon the counter along with a couple of glasses, and the customers helped themselves as usual. The officers saw no money pass between the parties, but after the liquids had been stowed away, Jacobs knocked on the window and said: "Hello, there, we've got a good case against you!" Evidently misunderstanding the words, Hesse replied: "All right, come around to the side door, and I'll let you in." Jacobs went around to the side door and was admitted. He walked up to the bar, and in response to Hesse's question of what he would take, Jacobs replied whisky. The bottle from which the two men previously seen in the saloon had obtained their drinks was still on the counter, and defendant pushed it towards the witness, saying, "There it is." Jacobs took the drink, laid down a dime, and raising the glass above his head, in order that Burt and Barlow, who were watching the circus through the window, could get a good view of it, he said, "Well, here's luck to all of us!" He then went out and joined his companions.

On the part of the defense, the old "ginger ale" and "sarsaparilly" chestnuts were worked for all they were worth; Hesse said he was merely a "roomer" above the saloon; that the saloon was owned by a man named Thompson; that he (Hesse) never went behind the bar, except at the request of Thompson; that on the Sunday in question, he never sold any whisky—"that he knew of," that he had treated several of his friends to "ginger ale" and "sarsaparilly." He remembered the occurrence of the tap on the window and of someone coming in, but he did not know what the customer drank, and was quite sure he had never received any money from him. He further said that he was a soldier; that he was on a six months' furlough; that he said, "I might have drank whisky when he was let in by the side door, but if he did, defendant knew nothing about it. He, himself, had punished nothing that day except ginger ale, but he afterwards admitted that while he was somewhat under the influence of liquor he was not drunk."

THE MONTEAL.

A New Incorporation in a New District.

The articles of incorporation of the Montreal Silver Mining Company were filed with the clerk of the Third District Court yesterday.

The capital stock of the company is $750,000, divided into 150,000 shares of the par value of $5 each. The shareholders are as follows:

Special permission from the King or the governor of the island.

A ROYAL QUEEN.

S. A. Van Praag, the traveling passenger agent of the Burlington, who has the party in charge, says the Queen is "rigorously anti-dead-head." She only has nine in her party, but she pays fifteen full fares across the continent.

The directors selected to serve for the first year are as follows: J. M. Dart, president; Frank H. Dyer, vice president; J. H. Woodmansee, secretary; W. L. Pickard, treasurer; B. G. Raybould, T. W. Ellerbeck and J. C. Glandt.

The company owns and will operate the City of London and Montreal mining claims, situated in the Snake Creek mining district, Wasatch County, Utah, the conveyance of which fully pays up all the shares of stock issued. For the purpose of creating a working capital for the corporation, each of the subscribers contributes one-third of his stock, making a working capital of 50,000 shares for the use of the company.

The Day in Court.

Judge Kane yesterday transacted the following business:

United States vs. May White; adultery; set for May 6th.

The People vs. Charles Wilson; grand larceny; defendant arraigned and pleaded not guilty.

The People vs. J. H. Gibbons, W. F. Allen and F. S. Hammond; grand larceny; defendants Gibbons and Allen arraigned and allowed till Monday to plead.

R. G. McNiece vs. Pacific Express Company; jury gives a verdict for plaintiff.

The People vs. George Geatz; grand larceny; defendant admitted to bail in the sum of $500.

David Powell was admitted to citizenship.

The case of Solomon Brischner vs. Frank H. Dyer is now on trial before a jury. This is the suit arising out of the Marshalls selling out the goods which Brischner claims were sold to him by Coffee John at the time of his failure, but which Marshall & Royle, attorneys for a number of John's local creditors seized with the allegations that they still belonged to the restaurant man. The suit is for something like $2,500 damages; the Marshalls are of course protected by the aforesaid creditors.

To Dislodge the Enemy.

When it takes the form of disease of the kidneys or bladder, is a task well nigh impossible of accomplishment. Real and vesical maladies are more obstinate than any others. Counteract, therefore, the earliest indications of inactivity of the many organs with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which possesses among other excellent qualities, those of an efficient diuretic. The degree of stimulation apparent from its use reaches, but never goes beyond the bounds of safety. It invigorates always, never irritates. Bright's disease, diabetes, catarrh of the bladder, are diseases successfully combated in their incipency with this benign medicinal stimulant and tonic. Besides regulating and regulating the kidneys, the bladder, the Bitters is a specific for fever and ague, constipation and dyspepsia.

Reconstruction Impossible.

This may not be true as regards States—indeed, we know it is not; but it is absolutely true as regards the delicate organs, the human lungs, when they are diseased and have consumed, they cannot be restored to a healthy condition. But bear in mind that this misfortune can never happen if HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND and TAR is administered as a remedy for the cough which always precedes pulmonary consumption.
